With 12 inches of fresh snow, the Angel Fire Ski Mountain is ready for you!

Our recent snowstorm has brought a fresh bath of snow to the ski runs of Angel Fire and the temperature has remained cold so that snow making can continue at its optimum.

It is definitely a winter wonderland just in time for the holidays. Of course there will be both the Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve Torchlight Parades, but this year Angel Fire will also offer night skiing!

Angel Fire Ski Resort will be the first and only skiing and snowboarding mountain in New Mexico. The resort will be lighting up 50 acres for fun after dark including Exhibition, a favorite run, as well as Ridge Run and Dreamcatcher.

In addition, a set of freestyle park features including jumps, rails and fun boxes will be accessible for evening hours as well as the NASTAR race course and the Polar Coaster tubing hill.

Night skiing will be available Thursday through Sunday throughout the season and 7 days a week during the holidays.

The grand opening of night skiing will take place December 19. The opening festivities will include live music and entertainment adjacent to the slopes.
